Health Office Issues Fewer Sick Excuses for 1936-37

Annual Report of Dr. F. R. Anthony Shows Students Becoming Health Conscious

Students at Northwest Missouri State Teachers college are growing more health conscious according to the 1936-37 annual report of Dr. Francis R. Anthony, head of the health office here.

Pres. Uel W. Lamkin released the report this week with the statement that it is one of the most commendable in the history of the school.

One of the most outstanding facts about the report is the fact that the health office was forced to issue less than half the number of sick excuses from classes last year than it issued the year before. The indication is that the preventive measures have forestalled illness and that the teachings and influence of the office on the student body have made students more health conscious.

Other significant items in the report are: The increase in the number of contacts made—2668 last year, 2514 in 1935-36, and 1867 in 1934-35. The fewer number of students who had to be sent to the hospital—26 last year, and 35 in 1935-36; this with an increased enrollment this year. The larger number of students referred to family physicians—120 last year, 93 in 1935-36, and 75 in 1934-35, another indication of the student's increased health consciousness.

It is the purpose of the health department to keep the standards high in order that the best work may be done by the students. The department (Continued on page 8)

Coffer-Miller Players Appear At College Next Week

Chicago Performers Will Present "Shadows Across the Throne," "King's Dilemma"

"Shadows Across the Throne," and "The King's Dilemma," two historical plays, will be presented by the Coffer-Miller Players at 8 o'clock Wednesday and Thursday evenings in the College Auditorium. Jess Coffer and Miss Martha Miller, who have appeared here before, have been extremely popular with past College audiences.

"Shadows Across the Throne," which will be played Wednesday night, is a three-act drama dealing with history's famous queens, Elizabeth of England, and Mary, Queen of Scots.

"The King's Dilemma," to be presented Thursday evening, is a duo drama and comedy.

Admission to the performances is by activity tickets for students and 50 cents for others. Seats will go on reserve tomorrow at the College and at Kuchs Brothers.

It is said that "Shadows Across the Throne" contains many dramatic scenes, in particular that one where Elizabeth signs the death warrant that sent Mary Stuart to the block. Those who have seen the play say that the dramatist has been able to depict forcibly Elizabeth's mental state at this momentous hour of her life.

History explains that Elizabeth dilly-dallied many months before (Continued on page 8)

Music In Normal Life Must Be Fun, Says Dykema

Columbia Professor Believes Music Most Social of any School Subject

"The first necessity of music in the normal life is that it be fun," Prof. Peter W. Dykema, of the music education department of Columbia University, told College students in an address June 10 in Social Hall.

The second requirement, according to Dr. Dykema, is that music be a good companion. "Music," he said, "is the most social of any subject I know. One of the values of music is that it demands cooperation, a kind not found in classrooms."

A sense of satisfaction comes from acquiring skill in music that makes it of great value, Dr. Dykema pointed out.

"Music in normal living," he concluded, "gives an esthetic experience of a type which is lovely and beautiful, noble, satisfying, and desirable in and of itself without anything outside itself being essential to that experience."

Dr. Dykema also spoke on the subject "Music in the Progressive School" at Residence Hall at the dinner given in his honor Thursday, June 10.

Largely because of the appeal of music to children, Dr. Dykema believes that music is becoming a subject of greater importance in the progressive school.

H. EARL SOMERVILLE VISITING HERE

H. Earl Somerville, a graduate of the College in the class of 1930, who is now teaching music in the Saginaw, Mich., junior high schools, arrived in Maryville last Saturday and spent this past week visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie G. Somerville.

MISSOURIAN TO APPEAR ON THURSDAYS

Beginning with next week's issue of The Northwest Missourian, the newspaper will be published at 11 o'clock each Thursday morning instead of Friday. The action came as a result of consultation between the sponsors of the publication and the contributing staff at the regular press club meeting Monday.

Press club meetings will be held henceforth at 4 o'clock each Thursday afternoon in Recreation Hall. Every person interested in writing for the Missourian is requested to be present at that time.

New Teachers Are Pleased With College

In Interviews State Students At S. T. C. Ready and Willing To Learn

IMPRESSED BY CURRICULUM

New instructors find students at the College ready and willing to learn, according to interviews, with a Missourian reporter last week.

So far this year the summer quarter teachers have been favorably impressed by the students, campus, and curriculum. The teachers who have been here before are glad to be back to renew old acquaintances and to make new ones.

Dwight Dorough, of the department of English, says, "I think M. S. T. C. is a very good teachers college. I like the friendliness of the students and I am particularly impressed by the curriculum. I believe there is a purpose behind it. The school seems to be up to the minute with a well-planned program of education."

Miss Constance Pearl Johnson, of the department of music, says, "I have been most delightfully surprised by the talent and interest of the students here. In the faculty there are extremely outstanding persons. I have been delighted with knowing the students and faculty. I was first impressed by the beauty of the campus. As I look west from the conservatory, the beauty of the (Continued on page 5.)

Summer Director of Women's Activities Arrives Saturday

Miss Alene Harris, of Syracuse U To Fill Position Until Dr. Smith Arrives in Fall

Miss Alene Harris, who has been appointed director of women's activities for the summer term of the College, arrived at the College Saturday to begin her new duties.

Miss Harris reported that she is impressed with the friendliness of everyone, and with the seeming goals of the students. "Each student," she said, "seems to have a high purpose, and a definite goal in view. The students and the faculty have the distinct quality of making a newcomer feel that she is wanted, and even more, that she is necessary."

Miss Harris commented on the beauty of the campus. She said, "I believe this is a campus that is really used for meditation and for fun. I see students strolling along who seem to be in deep thought. The loveliness of the place seems to give them inspiration. Other students display activity on the tennis courts, or walk and talk together. The campus conducive both to thought and action is a campus where lasting friendships are made, and life plans created."

Miss Harris is from Plano, Texas. She was at one time a social case worker with the Houston Social Service Bureau at Houston, Texas. From that position she went to Mississippi Woman's College, as director of student activities. During the past year, Miss Harris has been director of the dormitory at Syracuse University.

Kurby Bovard, a graduate of the College in the class of 1935, visited here Thursday. He is employed by an insurance company in Cleveland, Ohio.

Lee Lockhart, Noted Musician, Will Talk Here June 28

Outstanding Pittsburgh Teacher To Speak on Various Aspects of Musical Education

Lee Lockhart, former director of music at Council Bluffs, Ia., will appear at the College Monday, June 28, to lecture on several aspects of music education. The public is invited to attend the lectures, the exact schedule of which will be announced next week.

Mr. Lockhart was director of the Council Bluffs musical activities when that city became nationally known for its exceptional musical organizations. At present, Mr. Lockhart is special supervisor of instrumental music in Pittsburgh, in which capacity he is first assistant to Dr. Will Earhart, an outstanding teacher and philosopher in the Music Educators National conference.

His musical program is backed up without reservation by Pittsburgh's superintendent of schools, Dr. Ben G. Graham, who, in the midst of the depression, when other school systems were using the depression as an excuse to drop music and other subjects considered less important in the curriculum, said:

"In the city of Pittsburgh, music will not be one of the first, but rather one of the last subjects that will be dropped from the curriculum. It is one of the best subjects in the curriculum for preparing young people to live a wholesome, happy life."

Rink Quartet Gives Excellent Program In Assembly

Members of Chicago Symphony Orchestra Delight Audience In Hour's Concert

An enjoyable concert was presented by the Rink Quartet Thursday morning at the College assembly. The string quartet, regarded as the ideal medium of expression for instrumental music, gave an interesting and varied program.

The program consisted of two quartets, one by Grieg and one by Haydn, and a third miscellaneous group. The Haydn Quartet in D major, opus 64, opened the program. Simplicity was its outstanding characteristic.

In the second group were "Polka", (Kopylon, "Le Vendevs" (Sokolow-Glazounow-Liadon), and "Orientale" (Glazounow). The final Quartet in G minor, opus 27, of Grieg was extremely interesting. The melancholy Norwegian melody ran through the piece, accented by a Northern ruggedness.

Carl Rink, first violin, Paul Kahn, second violin, Harry Perkins, viola, and Vera Rehberg, 'cellist, make up the personnel of the quartet. The musicians are all members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and hold a high place in music.

NEEDED: A NEW BUILDING

In a recent assembly address, the president of our College stressed the need of a new building on the campus. The need is becoming more and more apparent as the enrollment at the College climbs, quarter by quarter.

Last week's issue of this newspaper carried a picture of the first College building, and it was indeed small as compared with the large modern structure on the campus today. But it must be borne in mind that the enrollment here at present far exceeds the enrollment at the first College classes in 1906.

Too, the figure of enrollment in 1906 did not include the pupils of the College high and elementary schools, also located in the present Administration building. The total population on the campus and in the Administration building five days out of the week, including the elementary and high schools, the College students and faculty and administrative officers, will "push" the 1200 mark closely, while the population on the first campus was around 250.

Assembled in crowded classrooms and laboratories, it is indeed difficult for students and faculty members to achieve their aims. Necessity demands that offices of faculty members be held in rooms intended to be classrooms.

It is hoped that legislative appropriations will in the near future provide funds sufficient for the construction of a new building in which to house the College elementary school or other departments of the institution.

AN OUTSTANDING PERSONALITY

Students of the College, and especially of the music department, last week were especially treated when they were privileged to hear Dr. Peter Dykema, head of the music education department of Columbia university, New York, in several addresses on this campus. Music students who attend classes here during the regular fall-winter-spring term returned last week to see and hear this famous educator.

There, indeed, was an outstanding personality—a personality that gained attention of the audience the moment of its appearance on the stage. Dr. Dykema could "lay the assembly out" because it didn't sing in the manner he wished—yet the assembly liked it! Then, too, a man who can get the College faculty to sing by itself—and well at that—deserves his share of musical credit.

It seems to us that students in the College who plan to teach music—or who plan to teach almost anything—should have prospered from being given the opportunity to hear and sing with Dr. Dykema. If a teacher can display the smiling disposition such as that on Dr. Dykema's countenance, and at the same time understand his subject matter, he will be sure to be a success.

A WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of one of America's most influential educational institutions—Columbia University in New York City—reported a word last week on the employment situation which should be of interest to all College graduates and those intending to graduate before many years pass.

According to this educator, the employment situation in the United States for graduates of colleges is better this year than it has been for several years. He added further that about as many positions were opening this year as open in normal times.

This, coming from such a prominent educator and the head of an institution where hundreds of graduates are turned out into the world each year, should indeed furnish College graduates-to-be with a new inspiration and hope. Perhaps we have rounded the corner where prosperity was reported to have tarried for so long.

In looking over the list of placements made by the College committee on recommendations this spring—the list appearing in another place in this week's newspaper—we should be further encouraged. It appears that Dr. Butler's report holds for the teaching profession as well as other professions.

THE COLLEGE "DRESSES UP"

Just as most people don new outfits in the spring, the College administration building this spring has taken on a more aesthetic appearance. The new appearance of the interior of the building no doubt made an impression on the new summer-term students who had not seen the institution since it was clothed in the old green and white colors so long prevalent.

For several weeks workmen have been striving to make the interior of the building more beautiful, and their efforts have not been in vain. The new color scheme of brown and tan indeed presents the interior in a newer and brighter light, deviating from the old and more or less drabby appearance. The administration through these workmen, has indeed made the building a much more cheerful place in which to carry on the activities of the College.

Now that the building is so much more attractive, it is expected that students will cooperate to help the administration keep it that way. Only with the help of every person in the College can the building's interior remain in the condition that it is at present. We solicit the cooperation of every student in doing his part to see that it remains that way. Let's keep the building in such a state that we shall be proud to show our friends that this is the place where we are privileged to attend classes!

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Monday came and went with students on this campus little realizing the significance of the day, or simply regarding it as another "blue Monday." In reality, however, that day was the 161st anniversary of the official adoption of the stars and stripes as the flag of the United States. The Betsy Ross flag, with thirteen stars and stripes, was adopted June 14, 1776.

all of the organizations with the exception of about three or four are inactive in the summer term, and these organizations are the ones that sponsor social events during the regular term. Incidentally, when there is no news about all of the active organizations on the campus, it makes it several degrees more difficult to publish this weekly newspaper.

The question has been asked by several summer term students: Why no social events in the summer quarter? You have social events almost every week during the regular term, don't you? The answer to the first question is: The reason for so few social events in the summer quarter (there are one or two school social affairs) is the fact that

Three instructors left Maryville this week for the west coast where they will soon set sail for the Orient to attend the conference of the World Federation of Education Associations in August at Tokyo, Japan. The trip will no doubt be interesting and educational. To President Lamkin, Mrs. Lamkin, Mr. and Mrs. Sayler and Miss Fisher, we say "Bon voyage," and hope the trip is indeed pleasant.

Strange indeed are the workings of biology. Not even the fertile brain of Colorado U. Day Chairman Wesley "What Can We Lose" McCune could have predicted the natural event that occurred in the midst of the pomp and ceremony of the track meet and affiliated stunts.

Floats paraded around the track, and a colorful crowd of more than three thousand was amused, unaware that grim drama was taking place in the center of the field. Several unsuspecting young women prepared themselves for one of the trying events of the program, the "Fowl" Olympics, without an inkling that one of the competing hens had practically become a mother.

Nothing was suspected until one of the chickens was lifted from its box. Then the awful truth became known. Women fainted and strong men paled, when it was discovered that one of the hens, untroubled by the fuss and feathers of the college festivities, had clung to the daily routine and laid an egg. Oh, the utter embarrassment of it all.

A Colorado student thought having a songfest in the Stadium was alright because "The wide open spaces made the singing more effective." No doubt. And generally speaking the wider open the better.

The Northeast Missourian's statement that there used to be a leather path on the Kirksville campus brings up this question—Where does all the leather go that is worn off on the long walk?

DEAN BERG CRITICIZES STUDENT HUMOR

EASTON, PA.—(ACP)—What college students think funny is pitifully lacking in humor, Dean Irving H. Berg of New York University said at the Lafayette College baccalaureate services.

The American undergraduate's lack of a genuine sense of humor and good taste is evidenced in the quality of so-called humorous magazines published by students, he explained.

"The supposedly humorous publications emanating from various college and university campuses seem to deal exclusively with the subject of sex. This is deplorable. It indicates an attitude of mind which doesn't know what is really funny. Many situations in life are ludicrous, but they are not necessarily nasty.

"That the American university undergraduate is merely evil-minded is something I refuse to believe. Bad taste and irreverence are neither of them humorous," said Dean Berg.

"Perhaps our age is peculiarly subject to demoralizing influences. With the strip tease, the suggestive movie and the salacious novel on every hand, there is a special challenge to the college man or woman to lead the way to a better and higher sense of humor and good taste."

At Washington

By ARNOLD SEWER
(Associated Collegiate Press Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—While colleges throughout the country are bestowing diplomas on their graduates amid the fanfare of elaborate ceremonies, 3,000 students in one of Uncle Sam's institutions of learning will receive their credits for a year's school work without any semblance of Commencement exercises.

The 3,000 are students in the Graduate School of the Department of Agriculture. In scattered classrooms in the huge buildings of the Department, and in private offices that are turned into class-rooms each evening after working hours, these students do their class work. And when the courses are completed, they receive credits which may be used towards a doctorate or a master's in practically any recognized University in the country.

Accounting, Nematology, Statistics, Landscaping, Microscopic Technique, Personnel Management, Languages, and many other courses are offered, and employees of the government, individuals in private business, and special students sent in by Universities compose the personnel of the school.

Many of the teachers are experts in the Department of Agriculture, but other instructors are brought in from the outside. Much money is spent to bring in outside authorities for lectures on special subjects.

The government provides the space for classes and there its official responsibilities end. Sufficient charges are made for the various courses to enable the school to maintain itself, and no Federal appropriation is used for its upkeep.

The director of the Graduate School is Arthur F. Woods, who was at one time Dean of Agriculture and Forestry at the University of Minnesota, and subsequently, President of the University of Maryland. Dr. Woods is more than 70 years old, but he is alert, active and gives the appearance of one decades younger. He runs the school as a sort of extra curricular activity as he does a full time job as a pathologist in the Bureau of Plant Industry.

The University of Arkansas is going to have an alumnus on the United States Supreme Court, if the prognosticators around Washington are right. Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas is slated for the appointment, according to alleged inside information, although certain of the President's advisers are said to be against him.

If ever anybody ever earned an appointment, Senator Robinson has. He has borne the brunt of the Administration's fights in the Senate, and he has always steered Administration measures through even when they were not in line with his own point of view. From a standpoint of services rendered, Robinson deserved to be elevated to the Supreme Court bench and almost all of the observers here who appreciate the value of his fights for the President, hope he will get the job.

trees and flowers is exquisite. The people of Missouri are much more welcoming and friendly than those of the North."

The students have given the impression that they are really in College to get an education, according to some instructors.

H. M. Howie, of the department of English, says, "I think that this campus is very beautiful. I believe that the students are really here to learn something and not just to waste their time. Students here take more interest in their class work than do university students."

J. Van Riper, department of geography, says, "I find the students here more willing to learn than at Colgate university." As a comment on the weather Mr. Van Riper said, "I did not expect to find it so cool here."

Some of the teachers who have been here previously are glad to be back.

Robert F. Karsch, of the department of history, says, "I was here last summer and so far this year it has not been nearly so hot as last year. I enjoy my work here very much. I don't get to go home on week-ends so I get to enjoy them here too. The classes are very interesting and the students compare very favorably with students of other colleges. There is no problem of discipline here."

Miss Mary Anne Lawrence, of the department of home economics, says, "I was here last summer and everything looks very familiar. The students, though the classes are large, are taking a very good interest."

Miss Ruth McNair, of the department of biological science, says, "I was here two summers ago, and it is a great pleasure to be back. I get to renew old friendships and to make new ones."

Miss Amelia Madera, Stanberry, of the department of English, says, "I have enjoyed returning greatly. I can see many improvements."

Edgar Ellis, of the department of physical education, says, "I especially like the intramural games. I think the school should be very proud of its fine set-up in the athletic department."

E. Graham Harall, of the department of mathematics, says, "I am very favorably impressed by the College in general. I especially like the regularity of things here. The general College atmosphere is very good."

Byron D. Murray, a graduate of the College who is now instructor in journalism, composition and American Literature at the State Teachers College in Moorhead, Minnesota, recently published, with his class, a special edition of the Moorhead Daily News and a special edition of "The Praeceptor," bulletin of the college there, in celebration of that school's golden anniversary this year.

President Uel W. Lamkin received complimentary copies last week of both publications from Mr. Murray.

CCC Paintings In Recreation Hall

An exhibit of paintings and art work done by men of the C. C. C. camps throughout the U. S., was opened last week at the College in Recreation Hall. The work consists of water color paintings, etchings, black and white drawings and pastel work.

The subject of the majority of paintings consists of the camp life of the C. C. C., and work done while in camp. Several individual portraits are also shown.

"Woodpile," (Co. 1429-C. C. C.-Warm Springs, Georgia) by Stanley Dale is an interesting water color study. It brings vividly to life the work done by a C. C. C. forester. The true-to-life colors used are of great importance in making the picture more real. Other pictures of interest showing the real characteristics of C. C. C. camp life are, "Tool House, 8 a. m.," "Turkey Creek Dam," "Returning to Camp," "Company, 704 Street," and many more.

The pictures are not only interesting in showing life of the C. C. C., but maintain a value of artistic importance to the artist.

Miss Olive DeLuce, chairman of the fine arts department, has charge of the exhibit.

College World

Ever since Helen of Troy kidded the boys into thinking her face was worth the launching of 1,000 ships and a lengthy war—and before that, women have been making men do foolish things.

The beauty that makes men transform themselves into long-eared, Democratic symbols worked on a romantic freshman at Princeton University who met a lovely coed at a spring prom.

Intoxicated with her beauty, he staggered home that night and penned her a Byronic-Swinburnian letter.

But when it came time to address the envelop, he realized he had failed to get her name and address. Undaunted, he sent the letter to "The Most Wonderful Girl in South Orange, N. J."

A few days later it was returned unopened and marked care Lost and Found, "To the Dumbest Boy at Princeton."

If there was a Pulitzer prize for slang, the sports writer at Ball State Teachers College who wrote the following description of a recent De Pauw ball game would probably win it:

"The Tigers definitely poured the pine into the assorted offerings of three Cardinal slabsmen last week for 13 tallies and 14 solid blows. The Cardinals meanwhile were being prepared for the pretzel jar by a clever flinger of the Old Gold, one Cooper.

"The Tigers showed their Sunday punch in a bad-dream fourth frame, in which they kicked the dish seven times, and the outcome, 13 to 3, was never in doubt after this scoring splurge."

A Phi Beta Kappa dangles his key and explains, in verse, how he fattens his averages:

Little Jack Horner sat in a corner

With crib notes in his lap-a.

He opened his book

And took a look

Now he's a Phi Beta Kappa.

Even tough judges who pound the gavel and bark, "Five dollars and costs," get an occasional laugh from college students.

It seems a Princeton University reporter interviewed the judge who does the fining for speeding on the New York-Philadelphia highway and got this story from him:

"The funniest experience I ever had was one with a Smith College girl. She was a very pretty little thing of 19, immensely frightened—and without money to pay her fine. Rummaging in her purse, she finally brought out a key. 'Here is the only thing valuable I have,' she said. 'It's the key to my room.'"

"The patrolman who brought her in and I exploded with laughter, but the girl never did catch on."

Set of Triplets Enrolls In College for Summer Term

Three young women enrolled at the College on registration day, fully intent upon keeping the fact that they were triplets a secret. But because of identical dress and almost identical faces the news soon leaked out.

Mabel, Fern and Wilma Reed, ages 17, of Blockton, Ia., comprise the only set of triplets enrolled at the College.

"When we came to Maryville, we tried to keep the fact that we are triplets a secret, but it didn't do much good," Mabel—the most talkative of the three—told a Missourian reporter, "People looked at us when we passed them, and finally someone asked us. Mr. Baldwin, the registrar, was the first to ask us if we were triplets—that was when we went to him to get our high school credentials."

The three sisters were graduated from the Blockton, Ia., high school in May of this year in a class of eighteen students. Wilma and Mabel will teach this fall at the Big Springs and Platteville rural schools, respectively, near Blockton. Fern is undecided as to what she will do next fall, but will teach if she can obtain a school.

"We're going to celebrate our eighteenth birthday by teaching our first school," Mabel said. The girls were born September 9, 1919, and both Mabel's and Wilma's schools begin this year on that date. The girls were born in Blockton, Ia., and always have lived there.

The triplets are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Reed of Blockton. They have one brother, John, who is older.

In noticing the girl's dress and faces, it would be easy to deduct that they were triplets, but if height alone were considered, it would be more difficult. Mabel is the tallest, Wilma shorter, and Fern shortest. There is about a foot's difference in Mabel's and Fern's heights.

"Everyone said we all dressed alike and finally asked if we weren't triplets. They told us we looked enough alike to be triplets," Wilma told the reporter.

When asked how they thought they would like attending College here, the following answers were given:

Wilma: "I think I'll like it."

Fern (the most timid of the three): "I think I'll like it."

Mabel (the most talkative of the three): "I hope it all isn't as hard as that enrollment day."

WOULD PAY WAR DEBT WITH SCHOLARSHIP

N. S. F. A.—Increasingly discussed in academic, political and business circles is the International Settlement Scholarship Plan for the partial repayment of the War Debts. Under the plan scholarships for American students in foreign universities would be established, to be paid for by the government of each country in which a particular university is situated.

Byron W. Skillin, chairman of the plan, has shown that neither payments in gold nor in merchandise and services (in view of our present tariffs) are practicable. He suggests, therefore, that governments of European nations owing us debts accumulated during the Great War, should subsidize educational opportunities to American teachers, students and artists. The candidates would be nominated by American congressmen (as are candidates to the national academies) and passed by an impartial board of examiners.

Mr. Skillin points out that international understanding would be increased through this large group continuously bringing American ideas and ideals into European universities and bringing back the best in the culture of the old world. He also shows that the many branches of American government and business would be enriched by a constant inflow of young men trained abroad as well as at home.

The International Settlement Scholarship Plan has received warm approval by such outstanding leaders as Bernard M. Baruch, Raymond Leslie Buell, Senator Gerald P. Nye, Senator James P. Pope, Secretary of Commerce Roper, Robert A. Millikan, John Haynes Holmes, Bruce Barton, William Green.

Undergraduates interested in securing further information may write the International Scholarship Plan, University of Pennsylvania Club, 37 East 36th Street, New York City.

NEBRASKA COEDS ANSWER MARRIAGE QUESTIONNAIRE

FREMONT, NEB.—(ACP)—Ah, John...er, um... Will you marry me?

This is a question Midland College coeds think they have the right to ask their marital prospects, without stirring up a lot of cat-talk behind their own backs.

They also believe like interests in religion, similar ideas and a complete understanding on finances are three things needed most to assure a happy married life.

If the wife doesn't neglect her home it is okay if she works for a few years after her marriage.

Long engagements and underhanded secret marriages were ruled out unanimously by the coeds.

Ambition is the most important quality for a husband. Good health, good manners, kindness, generosity and an even temper are other important requirements a man must have if he expects to be eligible for the aggressive Midlandites.

Miss Alberta Chase, of St. Louis, executive secretary of the Missouri Society for Crippled Children, was a visitor at the College Wednesday and Thursday. Miss Chase lectured on her work before various classes at the school.

Miss Nell Kellogg spent last Sunday visiting friends in Kansas City.

Miss Barbara Zellar, Oregon, a graduate in the class of 1936, visited at the College last Thursday.

SPORT BRIEFS

By GLENN ROUSE

When and if James J. Braddock enters the ring the night of Tuesday, June 22, in defense of his world heavy weight boxing championship with Joe (Brown Bomber) Louis in the role of challenger, Braddock may have occasion to wish that he had fought more than the forty-three rounds of actual fighting that he has been through in the last three years. Although Louis has whipped no outstanding fighter since his defeat at the hands of the unfortunate German, Max Schmeling, his numerous fights in the past year may have been just what the negro needed in the way of seasoning for the big fight.

The veteran Glenn Cunningham is still breaking records. Cunningham stepped the mile in the Metropolitan A. A. U. meet last week in 4:14.1 bettering the old meet record by .3 of a second. The famous Kansan now running for the New York Curb Exchange is entered in the Princeton invitation meet on Saturday and is ambitious to crack his own world record of 4:06.7 for the mile run set on the Princeton track a few years back.

Friends of C. A. (Chuck) Graham a former Bearcat will be interested in his move to Raytown where he will serve as football coach and instructor in manual training. Graham coached at Butler last year and had previously spent seven very successful years as an athletic coach and teacher in the Bethany, Mo. high school.

Ralph Guldahl's 72 hole total of 281 strokes was good enough to capture the National open golf championship and climaxed the best season that Guldahl has ever experienced. Guldahl was second high money winner in the winter tours of the golfers through the south.

This thing of major league ball players being injured by pitched balls has almost reached epidemic proportions. The Detroit Tigers are the hardest hit by the loss of Manager-catcher Mickey Cochrane, out for the season with a fractured skull and Catcher Ray Hayworth with a broken arm, both as a result of pitches that were out of control. League officials are seriously considering means of preventing such accidents.

JOEL TRULLINGER IS CAREFUL WITH PUPILS

Mr. Joe Trullinger, driver of the College buses, has a long record of service in driving.

Parents of the children who ride in the College buses, as well as the children themselves, should feel proud of the record of service which Trullinger has made, because he has never had a serious accident. There is no accurate way of knowing the number of children who have ridden in the bus that Trullinger drives, but it is known that no child has ever been injured while riding in the bus.

Last week, Trullinger received a certificate from the state department of education in recognition of the service he has rendered in driving without having an accident. This certificate is in acknowledgment of his work of the past year, but he has a record of eighteen years of service without an accident resulting in injury to life or property.

Trullinger started driving a bus at the opening of the school term in 1919. The first bus was hired by the College and was a Model-T Ford with a chain drive.

This was before the gravel and farm-to-market roads were built, and consequently there was difficulty at times in bringing the children to school.

In 1920, the College purchased a new bus and Trullinger drove it until, to use his own expression, "I wore it out."

Except for an interval of one or two years during which the College did not bring children to the school from outlying districts, Trullinger has driven a bus regularly since 1919. Even at the time when he did not haul regular students, he was taking students on excursions, parties, and field trips.

The bus which Trullinger drives at present was purchased by the College in 1930. Averaging eighty-five miles each day, Trullinger has driven this bus approximately 100,000 miles in the last seven years.

All the school children are Mr. Trullinger's friends. Each Christmas they present him with cigars and tobacco, and he in turn gives each child suckers or candy.

There have been students who rode in the bus from the time they entered kindergarten until they graduated from high school.

Parents of the children have great confidence in Mr. Trullinger, and feel that if "Joe" is in charge of the bus, their children will reach school and arrive home safely.

Likes Our Faculty Democratic Spirit

Dr. Stuart Queen, head of the department of sociology at Washington University, St. Louis, was at the College this week arranging for the fall enrollment of his son. Dr. Queen, who is on his way to teach at the University of Colorado, stated that he had chosen S. T. C. after investigating numerous other colleges and private schools over the Middle West because of the democratic spirit and scholarship of the faculty here.

Dr. Queen's son, who will major in social science and education, had intended entering summer school but was prevented because of illness.

The St. Louis professor, who is a friend of Dr. O. Myking Mehus, of the department of sociology here, formerly was a member of the Kansas University faculty.

Miss Edra Keplar, Kansas City, a graduate of the College in the class of 1935, visited here last weekend.

Campus romances should be good training to land a person in the category of the screen's "ten best kissers," yet, strangely enough, only one college man, Gary Cooper, who carried his books at Grinnell, has earned a place on Director Mitchell Leisen's list.

Proposed System of Polk Township Roads To Be Hard Surfaced

LEGEND ——— Proposed All Weather Road System: - - - State Roads: W. P. A. Roads
• Houses: • Schools. 107 Miles In Proposed System.

This is a plat of the road system that is contemplated for Polk township. The system provides for over 110 miles of either crushed rock or gravel, in the event that the bond issue carries June 22nd. Two half mile stretches around Bedison which are to be included in the program are not shown on the above plat. One from a point one-half mile north of Bedison and then one half mile west. The other from a point one half mile south of Bedison also extending one half mile west.

In the event that the government finishes the proposed WPA roads which are indicated on the above map those roads will not be included in the township project and then the total amount of funds necessary will be considerably smaller than the present proposed $300,000. It was also stated by members of the committee that the bond issue of $300,000 is the maximum amount that would be necessary to build and maintain the roads, and when the project is opened for bids it is quite likely that the funds actually used would be considerably less.

Health Office Issues Fewer Sick Excuses

ment is also responsible for the health instruction given to prospective teachers going out from this institution.

Every student is given a physical examination by Dr. Anthony. If advice is needed it is given at the time of examination. Students are assigned to special physical education or corrective classes whenever necessary. Constructive work of this kind is one of the most beneficial functions of the department.

Women who work during school are required to obtain health certificates from the doctor. More than 100 of these were issued during the year.

Permits for participation in sports are also required. Last year there were issued 23 track, 101 intramural basketball, 50 WAA sports and 117 swimming permits.

First aid treatment may be obtained by all students. Hospitalization in the St. Francis hospital is provided for by the College. This hospitalization must be recommended by the health administrator and is not for chronic illness. It does not include fees for doctors, nurses, or medicine.

In connection with health work an applied course in practical hygiene is required for all certificates or degrees offered by the College.

Dr. Anthony has listed the following points as objectives of the course.

1. To apply our knowledge of biology to everyday life.
2. To show the laws of nature cannot be violated without paying the penalty.
3. To teach the human body is an efficient but complicated machine.
4. To stress the fact that our natural immunity is our best safeguard against disease.
5. To treat the brain and nervous system as an integral part of the body.
6. To combat empiricism by encouraging independent thinking.
7. To harmonize our living with our environment.
8. To explain why we eat for strength (dietetics) and exercise for health (physical education).
9. To select and coordinate the work of other departments as aids to health teaching.
10. To stimulate a desire for specialized study in health and public welfare work.

The health administrator has had years of experience and education which fit him for his position. Dr. Anthony's early years were spent in this community. He received A. B. and B. S. degrees from the University of Missouri, being a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He taught two years at Maryville and two in the University.

After receiving his M. D. degree from Washington University in St. Louis, Dr. Anthony practiced for ten years in Maryville. During this time he was taking post graduate courses at several eastern Universities.

In 1908 he took special work in eye, ear, nose and throat at Charity hospital of Tulane university in New Orleans. Two years later he took further work in his field at the University of Vienna. Before returning to America, Dr. Anthony studied for three months under Sir Maifland Ramsey at the Royal Ophthalmic hospital in Glasgow. Dr. Anthony is a member of the county, state, and national medical societies.

Dr. Anthony is assisted by Miss Mercedes Duncan, R. N., and student helpers.

MR. FERGUSON RETURNS FROM VACATION

"That was the first planned vacation I ever took in my life," said Roy Ferguson, assistant business manager, upon returning to Maryville from a two weeks vacation. Mr. Ferguson visited friends in Jefferson City and from there went to Tunnel Rock Dam where he fished, hunted, and rested. "My fishing luck was very poor and my score much poorer," he said. He returned from the "Cabin in the Pines," Sunday, June 14.

Miss Georgia Schulte, a graduate of the College in the class of 1935, who is now assistant to President Harmon of William Woods College in Fulton, visited here last Thursday.

Coffer-Miller Players At College Next Week

signing the warrant and only under pressure from her councilors did she sign.

Another dramatic scene occurs before Mary's execution when she prepares to meet her fate, and dresses as if to attend a coronation.

Echoing through the centuries are Mary's last words, "Even as thy arms, O Jesus Christ were spread up on the cross so receive me into thy arms of mercy and forgive all my sins. Amen."

Kings and dictatorships are, today, in a never-ending dilemma over the constant change in the political set-up of nations. "The King's Dilemma," an historical duodrama in three acts is a close-up of a similar unrest in the times of that swaggering and greatly married king of England, Henry VIII.

Though Henry's life was filled with wars with Spain and France, he always had time to marry a wife and then behead her. He had the time to marry Anna of Cleve, but she out-witted him when it came to the guillotine.

This is a chapter in Henry's life that demands a hearty laugh for he was completely out-done by the little German princess, Anna van Cleve. He divorced her, but for that privilege he paid handsomely in money, estates, and jewels.

It was no small trick to escape the guillotine, but Anna did, and at her death she was buried in all honor at Westminster Abbey.

"The King's Dilemma," is a close-up of one of history's lighter though interesting events. There are many laughable situations in the comedy. It is said that both Martha Miller, and Jess Coffer play the difficult roles with success.

WRITERS CLUB MEETS

The Writers Club met Monday evening at the home of Miss Mattie M. Dykes.

Manuscripts were read and discussed by the members. A constructive criticism was given each manuscript and suggestions were made for improving writing technique.

Those present at the meeting were: Miss Amelia Madera, Dwight Dorrough, and W. M. Howie, members of the English faculty, and Helen Kramer, Eleanor Calfee, Edna Marie Bruce, Lurling Stevens, Alex Sawyer, Ellis Bray, Earl Duncan, and Arley Bryant.

DR. SMITH HERE

Dr. Arty B. Smith, research director of the state department of education in Jefferson City, was at the College last week and met with county superintendents and other educators to familiarize them with the new elementary education courses of study. Several College students heard his lectures, which were held in the auditorium at various times last Friday.
